

JUDICIAL STUDIES

The University of Nevada, Reno
The National Judicial College
The National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges

2010 PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

SCOPE

The Judicial Studies Program (JS) is intended to provide a formal academic setting in which trial judges (including administrative law judges) or juvenile and family court judges can integrate technical studies of the judiciary with more academic courses in an effort to provide an intellectual assessment of the role of the American judiciary. Toward this end, the University of Nevada, Reno (UNR) provides specially designed courses that treat judicially-related issues from a liberal arts perspective, including the humanities, social, behavioral and natural sciences and communications. The National Judicial College (NJC) and the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges (NCJFCJ) provide a series of courses treating more technical subject matter.

ACADEMIC OBJECTIVES

A major academic objective of the JS is to help create and define a new academic discipline: Judicial Studies. Providing a master's degree and a Ph.D. degree in judicial studies is an attempt to recognize current accomplishments in the field and to encourage further achievements by increasing the discipline's intellectual resources in teaching and research, and by raising its visibility in the judiciary and in the academic community.

IMPORTANCE TO JUDGES AND JUDICIARY

The JS is a challenging, stimulating academic degree program designed to:

- provide a structured, interdisciplinary academic curriculum applicable to your judicial needs;
- encourage you to take an active role in teaching, planning and administering judicial education;
- provide experience (by virtue of the master's thesis and Ph.D. dissertation requirement) for you in conducting and publishing research of interest and applicability to the judicial system;
- provide an academic degree program with national scope and impact.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS, CRITERIA AND PROCEDURES

For the Master's degree, judges may apply for acceptance to study in one of two major areas: Trial Court Judge Major (which includes administrative law judges) or Juvenile and Family Court Judge Major. Priority for admission will be given to applicants who are full-time sitting trial judges of general court jurisdiction or judges of juvenile and family courts. Consideration may be given to other qualified full-time judges and international judges. Admission to the master's program shall be limited to graduates of ABA accredited law schools who are currently serving full-time on the bench. Exceptions may be made for full-time sitting judges who are graduates of recognized foreign law schools or who are graduates of non-accredited American law schools who have been admitted to the Bar, and when it appears that the applicant is otherwise qualified and would, if accepted, contribute to the success of the program.

Factors to be considered in the admission process include professional achievement since law school, professional activities that indicate an interest in the law and the judiciary, published writings (including opinions), academic record in college and law school, extracurricular activities, and three letters of reference provided by professional colleagues. Consideration will also be given to the goal of attaining a wide geographic distribution of participants in this program. Major emphasis will be placed upon the applicant's professional achievements and the potential for making continued contributions to the judicial profession.

For the Ph.D. degree, judges who have graduated from the master's program may apply. Factors to be considered include professional achievements and professional activities since receiving the master's, performance while working toward the master's degree, published writings, and letters of reference.

Judges interested in applying for admission must fill out the proper admission form and submit. A complete master's application consists of: the application form; $60 application fee; two official copies of undergraduate, graduate and law school transcripts sent to the program directly from the school; three letters of reference; and samples of writings. It is the applicant's responsibility to ensure that all materials are received by the JS office, as no application will be considered until all materials have been received. A completed Ph.D. application consists of: the application form; $40 application fee; letters of reference from the master's thesis committee members; three additional letters of reference; and samples of writing since receiving the master's.

It is the responsibility of applicants to make arrangements with the appropriate judicial personnel to ensure that they can be absent from court for the necessary time during two or more summers.

Admissions decisions shall be made by the JS Admissions Committee, which consists of representatives from the University of Nevada, Reno, The National Judicial College, and the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges, and by the University of Nevada, Reno Graduate School. Once a decision has been reached, applicants will be notified in writing. An applicant must be accepted into the program in order to enroll in UNR classes and receive credit for NJC and NCJFCJ/JS classes.

ADMISSION DATES

Master's applications may be considered anytime during the year. Ph.D. applications are accepted anytime during the year for consideration each January.

CURRICULUM

The curriculum focuses on judges and their roles in and contributions to American society, and on the improvement of services rendered by judges in a free society. The curriculum encourages students to become more proficient in the diagnosis and analysis of problems through the use of techniques developed by the social, behavioral and natural sciences, as well as by the humanities. Also, the curriculum will require the study and assimilation of research techniques used by professionals who testify in court. These same techniques will be used by students to study issues important to the advancement of the discipline of judicial studies.

The JS serves as an umbrella for two related, though distinct, academic majors; one is for trial judges, the other is for juvenile and family court judges. The former is offered by the University of Nevada, Reno with the cooperation of The National Judicial College. The latter is offered by the University of Nevada, Reno with the cooperation of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. Each major has some required and elective courses. The total number of credits required in each major is 32, with NJC and NCJFCJ courses numbered 600-699, and UNR courses numbered 700-799.

DOCTOR OF JUDICIAL STUDIES

The Ph.D. requires additional required and elective courses beyond the master's, as described below. This will vary by student. Please contact Denise Schaar-Buis, Program Officer, for an evaluation of your file to determine additional courses needed.

Required courses include:

- JS 795 Comprehensive Exam, 1 credit (UNR)
- JS 799 Dissertation, 24 credits (UNR)

Elective courses include:

- JS 775 Independent Study, 1-3 credits (UNR)
- JS 780 Special Problems, 1-3 credits (UNR)
- JS 889 Graduate Advisement, 1-4 credits (UNR)

COMPLETION OF COURSEWORK

For the master's, a student may take up to six years to complete the program, but it is designed to be completed in two to four years. In order to complete the program in two years, a student must be able to spend a total of at least 12 weeks on the UNR campus during two consecutive years for completion of UNR requirements. More time may be required for completion of the NJC or NCJFCJ courses, depending upon course schedules and the qualifications of a candidate for retroactive credit (see "Retroactive Credit by Examination").

Coursework for the Trial Court Judge major is comprised of 14 required credits: General Jurisdiction or Special Court Jurisdiction (NJC), Judicial Writing (NJC), History and Theory (UNR), and Thesis (UNR). It also requires 8 elective credits from NJC and 9 elective credits from UNR totaling 32 credits in all. NJC courses are one week in length excluding General Jurisdiction or Special Court Jurisdiction, which are two weeks in length. UNR courses are two weeks in length, excluding History and Theory, which is offered at night and is four weeks in length.

Coursework for the Juvenile and Family Court Judges is comprised of 17 required credits: General Jurisdiction (UNR), Judicial Writing (NJC), Core College (NCJFCJ), History and Theory (UNR), and Thesis (UNR). It also requires 4 elective credits from NCJFCJ and 9 elective credits from UNR totaling 32 credits in all. Again, NJC courses are one week in length excluding General Jurisdiction, which is two weeks in length. University of Nevada, Reno courses are two weeks in length, excluding History and Theory, which is offered at night and is four weeks in length. NCJFCJ courses are all one week in length.

For the Ph.D., a student has up to eight years, beyond the masters, to complete the program. Typically, an additional 12 weeks on the University of Nevada, Reno campus and 49 credits are required (18 UNR elective credits, 6 NJC or NCJFCJ elective credits, 1 credit Comprehensive Exam, and 24 credits for the dissertation). For information or an evaluation of your program, please contact James T. Richardson, program director, or Denise Schaar-Buis, program officer.

Considerable effort has gone into making maximum use of the relatively short time students will spend on campus. Students should expect to spend non-classroom time reading or preparing for end-of-course examinations or projects both before and after course attendance. The completion of the thesis or dissertation requirements will be accomplished outside of classes. To receive course credit, students should expect to attend each course in its entirety and schedule travel plans accordingly.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE AWARD OF THE MJS OR DJS DEGREE

To be awarded the master's degree, the student must: complete a minimum of 32 credits in the prescribed curriculum; maintain a 3.0 grade point average in graded courses; take classes for 12 weeks in residence on the university campus; and complete all required courses, any exams or papers assigned, and a thesis approved by the student's advisory committee composed of JS faculty members. Students in UNR courses are assigned letter grades, while those taking NJC or NCJFCJ courses are assigned "S" (satisfactory) or "U" (unsatisfactory).

Approval of the thesis may occur in either of two ways. The applicant may defend the completed thesis orally, or, with committee approval, satisfy the requirements of a thesis by publication in a suitable ABA-approved law review or other professional refereed journal, and by submitting the publication in a modified form for archival storage in the UNR, NJC or NCJFCJ libraries. Candidates have six years to finish all requirements of the master's degree.

To be awarded the Ph.D. degree, the student must complete a minimum of 73 credits in the prescribed curriculum, maintain a 3.0 grade point average in graded courses, take classes for an additional 12 weeks in residence on the UNR campus, and complete all required courses, exams, assigned papers, and a dissertation. A minimum of 30 credits, not including dissertation credits, of the 73 credits must be 700-level substantive courses. The maximum number of transfer credits from the master's program is 24, with one-half of those in 700-level UNR courses. Thesis credits do not transfer. An additional one credit is required for the comprehensive exam, which is usually completed in conjunction with the final oral defense of the dissertation. The student's advisory committee, composed of JS faculty members, approves the program of study and dissertation. Course grading is the same as the master's degree.

RETROACTIVE CREDIT BY EXAMINATION

Past participants in NJC or NCJFCJ programs may receive credit toward the master's degree for courses under specified conditions as set forth in the UNR catalog and in the retroactive credit regulations of the program. The credits must be for courses which have been approved for required or elective credit as previously specified. Those who wish to obtain academic credit for courses taken previously must complete the appropriate request form and must take the most current written exam to be administered by NJC or NCJFCJ. None of the retroactive credits may be applied toward or substituted for UNR courses numbered 700 or above.

The regulations for retroactive credits by examination for NJC and NCJFCJ courses are as follows:

1. In order to receive retroactive credit, a degree candidate must fill out an application to take the exam.
2. Credit will be granted only upon successful passage of an examination covering the basic topics or objectives of the course. The examination will be the same as the examination given to students currently enrolled in the course. It will, therefore, test the student's current knowledge of the area rather than the material as presented at the time the course was taken. Examinations will be given at NJC or NCJFCJ at the conclusion of the current course offered, or may be administered by a proctor in the student's home state.
3. Credit for General Jurisdiction may be obtained whether the student took the two-week course, three-week course or Advanced General Jurisdiction.
4. Credit by examination may be obtained by a student who participated in a course as a faculty member.
5. Credit by examination may not be obtained by a student for more than 10 credits total.
6. Credit by examination will not be granted for courses that were taken more than seven years before the student's admission, except on approval of the director of the program.
7. Potential students for the master's may take an examination in a course offered for credit, and receive credit after admission to the JS, so long as admission is within seven years of the examination.

TUITION AND FEES

The tuition and fees for the JS are paid separately to the three schools cooperating in the JS, according to the tuition and fee policy of each. The three schools assess tuition and fee charges for each course at the time the course is taken.

University of Nevada, Reno Fees

The University of Nevada, Reno requires for each course offered in 2010 a payment of $995. The Ph.D. dissertation fee is $4,200. UNR tuition includes health service and student union use, but does not include course materials, room or board.

Certification of payment by an appropriate state agency is acceptable. The fee for the thesis course is payable at the time that the student makes application for graduation. The fee for the Ph.D. dissertation can be spread out over the completion period of the degree. In addition to tuition, students will be required to pay a $60 JS application fee ($40 Ph.D.), a $66 graduation fee, and costs associated with required course materials, as well as research, preparation, copyrighting, $105 binding costs of the thesis and dissertation.

Cancellations and refunds: Students may withdraw from the JS program at any time. However, no refunds will be given.

NJC Fees*

For NJC coursework taken in Reno in 2010:

One-week course:	$985 Tuition/$245 Conference
Two-week course:	$1,495 Tuition/$490 Conference
Crosslisted:	$1,220 Tuition/$235 Conference

For NJC coursework taken off-site from Reno in 2010:

One-week course:	$1,195 Tuition/$370 Conference

*Confirm tuition and conference fees prior to registration as costs are subject to change.

Tuition for NJC courses includes the cost of course materials. The conference fee includes welcome reception, daily lunches, coffee breaks, and an award presentation dinner on Thursday evening. (Adjustments may be arranged with the business office for candidates unable to attend Thursday evening functions because of the evening JS class.)

Students who have previously taken NJC courses that qualify for JS credit, and who successfully pass the appropriate retroactive credit examinations, are not required to pay additional tuition for such courses.

NCJFCJ Fees

NCJFCJ charges students the same tuition and fees as it charges other participants in its programs. Contact the NCJFCJ directly for fee information. Courses cross-listed with NJC are charged at the NJC rate (JS 661).

NCJFCJ tuition includes the cost of course materials. The conference fee includes coffee, special meal, activities, and services.
